

2b). Please describe the current status of the paper you presented (is it published or forthcoming (please give status), submitted, etc.)

The paper is currently under review at Economic Journal.

The paper was rejected by a top journal. We are now revising it for submission to a different journal (either a top journal or a good field journal)

published in the Rivista di storia economica

The paper will be submitted for publication very soon. (It has taken me an enormous amount of time to revise it.)

Submitted to Economic History Review after incorporating the comments made at Clio, the journal invited us to revise and resubmit the paper. We did and we are awaiting the final decision.

Still being revised for submission.

Submitted (as of today!)

It is still in draft, will be submitted this fall.

I plan to submit it soon.

It is currently a working paper which we hope to submit during the summer 2007.

The paper is not submitted yet, but will probably be sent out towards the end of the summer, in no small measure thanks the feedback we received. Indeed, we will now submit two papers right away rather than one.

We are currently revising the paper, but intend to submit the manuscript in a few months' time.

2b). Please describe the current status of the paper you presented (is it published or forthcoming (please give status), submitted, etc.)

The paper will be submitted to a journal in fall 2007.

I INTEND TO SUBMIT MY PAPER FOR PUBLICATION NEXT MONTH (JULY) AND SIMULTANEOUSLY RELEASE IT AS A WORKING PAPER.

The paper is currently being revised for distribution as a job market paper and will later be revised for submission to a journal.

The paper is nearing completion and soon will be submitted for publication.

It's an ongoing dissertation project.

It is forthcoming in a collection of essays being published by Stanford University Press
